Throughout the pandemic, TCM physicians and self-taught practitioners have taken to the world-wide-web to share recipes and overall health protocols. Numerous users are convinced of its usefulness, with some studies suggesting it can assist alleviate symptoms. Capsules of the medicine had been given to all Hong Kong residents when a Covid wave hit the city last year. According to followers like Yu, "TCMs have fewer side effects and operate slower to regulate the body, rather than Western medicines that 'fight the symptoms but rarely the supply of the illness'".
